SAFER Systems Joins the National Preparedness Month (NPM) 2010 Coalition

Camarillo, Calif. – SAFER Systems, the global technology leader in chemical emergency management solutions, is set to participate once again in the National Preparedness Month Coalition.

Reaching out to government agencies, industry, communities, coalition members and customers, SAFER Systems will share their 30 years of expertise in emergency planning, mitigation and response during NPM taking place in September, to educate and promote emergency preparedness in America's communities, businesses and homes.

SAFER Systems' array of products complements NPM's agenda. They provide state-of-the-art emergency preparedness, response and management solutions for both private and public sector use. SAFER Real-Time® for industrial environments; SAFER Homeland Responder™ for mobile response; and SAFER TRACE™ for hazards analysis/risk assessment planning are solutions that make one more prepared.

“SAFER Systems is excited about participating in this important coalition again, as well as being able to lend our experience and expertise to the campaign,” says Ernest Gilbert, President of SAFER Systems.

Adds Chris Cowles, SAFER Systems' Global Marketing Manager, “NPM is about being prepared. Part of this preparedness involves building awareness and educating. We hope to increase the level of awareness of industry, government agencies and communities as to the potential dangers of an accidental or intentional hazardous materials release and educate them about available technologies and solutions to keep businesses, communities, and emergency preparedness/response agencies ready and able to effectively deal with release events, which continue to occur with frequency on a daily basis globally. We believe that this knowledge is essential to being truly prepared and to saving lives.”

NPM is sponsored by the Ready Campaign in partnership with Citizen Corps and the Ad Council, and is open to all public and private sector organizations.
